

Gletscherblick's wine list

Curated with passion

This wine list is the result of years of experience, thorough selection and a relentless curiosity for the extraordinary. It reflects the passion and finesse of our sommeliers.

Our selection focuses on Austrian wine culture, ranging from the elegant freshness of the Wachau region to the energy of the Burgenland and the harmonious facets of Styria.

Furthermore, selected wines from our neighbouring countries and special discoveries from the New World complement our wine list.

We combine tradition and innovation, as well as regional gems and international highlights.

Austrian White Wines

Grüner Veltliner

Grüner Veltliner is a true Austrian variety – with the exception of a few regions abroad, this distinctive grape variety grows almost exclusively in Austrian wine regions. The vines thrive on the gentle slopes of the Wachau, in the Kamp and Kremstal valleys, in the Weinviertel region and around Vienna.

Its characteristic bouquet of green apples, citrus fruits and a subtle peppery note reflects the diversity of the Austrian landscape.

Wachau

The Vinea Wachau association consists of dedicated winegrowers who are committed to preserving the unique cultural landscape of the Wachau region. Their wines are produced strictly in accordance with the Wachau Codex – natural, authentic and unadulterated.

The Wachau classification levels Steinfeder, Federspiel and Smaragd serve as indicators of origin and quality, reflecting the full stylistic spectrum of the region's wines – from light, fresh wines to concentrated, long-lived top selections.

Riesling

With its lively freshness, pronounced acidity and moderate alcohol content, Riesling is revered as the king of white wine grapes for good reason. A true masterpiece of nature.

But what makes it so special? Its origin is always clearly evident in its character. The late ripening Riesling from the cooler regions of Lower Austria, such as the Wachau or Kamptal, unfolds a fascinating aroma of peach, apple and apricot, complemented by floral notes.

Welschriesling

Around 20 per cent of Austria's wine-growing area is planted with the Welschriesling grape, which is a wine with real character. Despite its name, it is not related to the well-known White Riesling. With its fresh, lively acidity and fruity aromas, it is a versatile and refreshing accompaniment to many dishes and perfectly reflects the diversity of Austrian viticulture.

Grauburgunder

A mutation of the world-famous red Burgundy variety Pinot Noir, also known as Pinot Gris, is classified as a white grape variety despite its reddish to red-coloured skin. Wines made from its grapes have low acidity but offer plenty of body and a wonderful richness of extract. With its bright golden hue, occasionally accompanied by a delicate reddish shimmer, this is an elegant, powerful wine that impresses both nose and palate.

Weißburgunder

Considered one of the long-standing relatives of the Burgundy family in Austria, Pinot Blanc is rather subtle in aroma, yet develops an impressive fullness and good backbone, giving it remarkable body. This harmonious balance makes it an ideal accompaniment to food, pairing well with a variety of dishes and impressing with its elegant structure.

Chardonnay

The global player of the white Burgundy family, Chardonnay has now established itself in almost all wine-growing regions in Austria. This grape, originally from Burgundy, is used there to produce some of the finest and most expensive white wines in the world.

Wine lovers appreciate Chardonnay for its diverse flavour components, ranging from fruity notes to complex, creamy aromas. These different facets are particularly evident in Austria: while some Chardonnays emphasise clear fruitiness, others present their full-bodied, barrique-matured elegance. A versatile wine that delights in every variation.

Gelber Muskateller

As one of the oldest grape varieties, Gelber Muskateller is at home in almost all Mediterranean countries. With its unmistakable bouquet of nutmeg and elderflower, it seduces the senses and displays a fresh, aromatic versatility.

In recent years, this grape variety has gained popularity and is now enthusiastically cultivated in many Austrian wine-growing regions. A lively, fragrant wine that fascinates connoisseurs and new wine lovers alike.

Sauvignon Blanc

Although originally from south-western France, Sauvignon Blanc has now established itself worldwide – yet it remains a true Styrian speciality. The grape variety was already being cultivated and vinified in this region during the time of Archduke Johann.

Sauvignon Blanc is characterized by its intense aromas, lively acidity, and remarkable minerality, which comes through particularly well. It is a wine with a strong character that perfectly combines freshness and complexity, representing both Styrian tradition and international wine culture.

Austrian specialties

Austrian specialties such as Gemischter Satz, Rotgipfler, Zierfandler, and Roter Veltliner grape varieties play an important role in the Austrian wine world. Gemischter Satz has developed from a former marginal phenomenon into a genuine specialty in Austria. In this case, different grape varieties are grown together in a single vineyard, harvested at the same time, and vinified together.

Rotgipfler and Zierfandler are mainly native to the Thermenregion and are also predominantly cultivated there. These grape varieties produce Burgundy-style wines with complexity and finesse.

Austrian Red Wines

Blauer Zweigelt

Zweigelt, also known as Blauer Zweigelt, is Austria's most popular red wine variety. It was bred in 1922 by Dr. Fritz Zweigelt at the Klosterneuburg Wine Research Institute. The grape produces deep dark, fruity wines that are particularly characterized by a distinctive note of sour cherries.

Zweigelt wines are generally soft in tannins and display a fresh yet subtle acidity. Zweigelt has experienced a real boom in recent decades – both as a single-varietal wine and in cuvées, where it is being combined with other domestic or international varieties. The spectrum ranges from simple, fruity wines to more complex, higher-quality versions.

Blaufränkisch

Blaufränkisch is one of Austria's most distinctive red wine varieties, primarily native to Burgenland and Lower Austria. It is distinguished by its deep red colour and aromas of dark berries such as blackberries and cherries, complemented by spicy, peppery notes.

With its strong tannins and lively acidity, Blaufränkisch offers great complexity and depth, both in its freshness and with some ripeness.

Cabernet Sauvignon & Cabernet Franc

Two classics that complement each other perfectly.

Cabernet Sauvignon impresses with its powerful structure, intense aromas of cassis and black berries, and expressive tannins.

Cabernet Franc brings an elegant freshness and herbal nuances that give the wine a special depth.

Both grape varieties produce powerful, structured, and elegant wines with excellent aging potential.

Germany

German wine was already introduced by the Romans on the Rhine and Moselle rivers. Germany is mainly known for its high-quality Rieslings and Pinot Noirs. Riesling white wines in particular are known worldwide for their fresh, precise acidity, delicate fruity aroma profile, and longevity.

Particularly popular growing regions include the Moselle, Rheingau, and Palatinate.

Italy

Wine plays an integral part in the daily life of Italians – the trio of "bread, olives and red wine" embodies the Mediterranean way of life like nothing else. In addition to well-known international grape varieties such as Cabernet and Merlot, it is primarily the local, national grape varieties, such as Sangiovese and Nebbiolo, which are responsible for the impressive diversity of Italian wines. Wines such as Barolo, Amarone, Brunello, and Chianti enjoy a particularly high reputation worldwide. Among the white wine varieties, Pinot Grigio has become indispensable, gaining worldwide renown especially in Friuli. The most important regions in Italy are Piedmont, Tuscany, and Veneto.

Gletscherblick's Dessert Wines 0.375 l

Noble sweet wines are among the rarest and most sought-after wines in the world. The noble fungus Botrytis Cinerea, which is responsible for the noble sweetness, only occurs in sufficient quantities in a few regions. These wines are produced in various categories such as Beerenauslese, Trockenbeerenauslese, and Eiswein. A striking feature of noble sweet wines is their very high residual sugar content.
